NEARING HOME.

"And He led them forth by the right way, that they might go to a city of habitation." We have heard of the city so shining and fair, In the far-away land of the blest, Of the mansions of glory preparing for those Who there, and there only, would rest;
In those bright habitations we too long to dwell,

To that city as pilgrims we roam;
Though the journey be long, we are traveling

For each day is a day nearer home.

Through the cold, wintry storm and the sum-mer's fierce heat, In conflict, in sorrow, and pain, Over mountain and valley, and deep rolling

We must pass ere that city we gain.
Though toilsome the "way," it must surely be "right,"
Since God is our leader and guide,
In the pillar of cloud and of flame, day and

He has promised with us to abide.

And when from the hilltops we catch the first gleam,
Of the walls and the gates of pure gold,
When faintly the echo seems borne on the

Of a rapture and joy uncontrolled; When we feel the light touch of invisible hands,

And hear the soft rustling of wings,
When the thought that his angels are guarding our way, New strength and encouragement brings We are nearing the "land" that was very far off, The home of the ransomed and blest; Soon the "King in his beauty" our eyes shall behold,

And forever with him we shall rest, Then as down through the valley of shadow

we go,
Hope sings her sweet song to the end;
And faith follows the voice, till in triumph 'tis lost,

And to glory and God we ascend. MRS. STOWER. -Northwestern Christian Advocate.

Sunday-School Music.

(This address (concluded) was delivered by Rev. J. H Willey, Ph. D., before the third annual convention, of the Delaware Sunday-school Association, in Wilmington, April 12th, 1889, and is published by re-

CONCLUDED.

So much for the music, and now a word or two in reference to the words to which this music may be set. These words should mean something, and this meaning should be easily understood. So many of our Sunday-school songs are ntend to be sung. Edgar Poe claims, that he fixed upon a certain stanza in the Raven, as the climax of the poem and then deliberately weakened all the stanzas preceding, so that the effect of the Mid play sure sand palaces, though heam a climax might not be marred. Evidently we have not yet reached the climax, in many of the macuronics that are printed in the singing books. Their authors did their duty as far as the weakening process is concerned, but they forgot to write any climax. Of course it would not be safe to particularize, but to show what I mean, let me give an old stanza once quite popular, but now so far out of date, that I run no risk in quoting it in this connection:

"Ye monsters of the briny deep, Your Maker's praises spout. Up from your sands ye codlings creep, And wag your tails about."

Now this stanza seems to be very reverential, and is undoubtedly very rhythmical, and a good lusty-voiced Sundayschool could make it echo o'er and o'er; but it is not a proper Sunday-school soug nevertheless. I cannot refrain from quoting from a book which lies open before me-a book not twenty years old, and one which has been very popular in its day. The stanza is from a Christmas carol, and reads:

ol, and reads.

"A little child, a maiden fair,
Her watch beside him keeping—
And angels wondered as they gazed,
And shook their starry wings.
They saw their Lord before them—
He, an infant, calmly sleeping—
O, love of God, surpassing all,
Mysterious hidden things."

rhyme, or the reason either, in that doggerel; and yet our Sunday-schools were singing that, last Christmas.

There should always be some effort on the part of the leader, to make clear the meaning of the words. Some of the most startling ideas have been gotten from an ordinary hymn by the quick-eared, keenwitted children. A boy came from school one afternoon, and asked his mother what kind of a bear a "consecrated cross-eyed bear" was; as they had been singing about one in the class. Of household, until it was learned, that the school had been singing the 66th hymn of the Methodist collection, and the line which seemed to refer to an unusual and distressing case of ursine strabismus, was the simple pledge, "The consecrated cross I'll bear."

Another bear story, and equally to the point, is evolved from the effective song of "The Ninety and Nine," where the child, misled by sound, asks how the one lost sheep had gotten "away on the mountains, wild as a bear," and how the law of the survival of the fittest, the shepherd was ever going to catch such a ferocious animal.

I might give multiplied instances of such Hibernicisms—all of which could be avoided, by a little care, if the superintendent would imitate the thirteen priests of Ezra, who "read in the book distinctly, and gave the sense, and caused the people to understand the reading."

A word or two might be spoken occasionally to the children, about their pronunciation. I defy any one to write out the words of an unfamiliar hymn, from the singing of the ordinary Sunday school. Of course we have high authority for the peculiar and revolutionary orthoepy in song; as the best of professional teachers instruct their pupils to sing only the vowels, but it sometimes produces a ridiculous effect.

The Brooklyn Eagle recently gave a rethe metroysalie. "Home sweet Home" was the song; and said the reporter, "there was not a dry eye in the house, as she magnificently warbled, sly-com. (1) H, arm from thesk eyeseam stew wallow a share, Witch seek through the whirl disneerm et twichle swear. Appropriateness should also be studied; for nothing so upsets the dignity of a religious service, as an absurd mesalliance between the song and the service. At the opening of a recent Sunday-school anniversary, in the midst of the festivities, congratulations, and gladness, thequartette arose, and stolidly and doleful ly sang a mournful threnody, whose refrain, repeated over and over with lachrymose emphasis, was, "Prepare,---prepare,-prepare to meet thy God." O what a fall was there, my countrymen! and the agony of the next five minutes may be appreciated, only by those who have suffered a like affliction, until

"Silence like a poultice came, To heal the wounds of sound."

The appropriateness of the choir, that sang, "Mistaken Souls, That Dream of Bliss," at a wedding, may or may not be questioned. The writer of this essay declares the settlement of that question, to be out of his jurisdiction. Though when the same choir at another time sang for the

Will some one tell me, where is the have sought, and mourned because I ical concerns of the community. Our found it not," there did not seem to be members occupy prominent and influennearly so much discussion as to appropriateness. It is a great mistake to suppose, that the children do not notice these things. Two little philosopheres were listening to the stirring strains of the Lohengrin weddingmarch; the following dialogue was overheard: "Why does the organist always play, Lo-he-grin's, when people are married?" asked the bright boy. "That isn't it," answered the still brighter sister, with a discernment perhaps beyond her years. "When course there was consternation in that | they come to be married, the organist always plays Lo-he's-green."

Let the music be appropriate; let it be part of the service in hand; let it add its force to the words that have been spoken, the lesson that has been taught, and it will never go amiss. It may require a little care in selection; it may indeed reveal the narrowness of many of our Sunday-school books, but when these pains are taken universally and conscientiously, the books will broaden to meet the demand, and little by little, by the the most varied demands.

One more word and I stop. There is a possible danger in some schools, of making the music too prominent. Music is sometimes dangerous, not only in quantity, but in the very taste it cultivates, and the appetite it feeds. It may not be generally known, that the Council of Trent fiercely debated whether any music should be allowed in public service, save the simplest Gregorian chants. on account of the danger of cultivating the mere æstheticism of art.

This John Alden, who speakes so nobly and effectively for another, may end in winning to itself, the homage of the listener. Cowper once wrote to Newton the following about a preacher: "He seems to have suffered considerably in port of a famous singer's appearance in | his spiritual character by his attachment | shipers. to music. I believe that wine itself does not more debauch and befoul the natural understanding than music; always music, in season and out of season, weakens and destroys the spiritual discernment." This was written by one of the authors of the famous Olney hymns to another, and the writer is fully able to bear the responsibility of such a state-

> I hoped to say something in reference to meetings for the practice of singing, the best methods for disseminating a geneneral knowledge of musical notation among the children, but will leave all this to be elaborated in the discussion which is to follow.

Sunday-school music properly guarded and wisely used, may become a prophet of the new dispensation. The voice of one crying in the wilderness, "Prepare ye the way of the Lord," the spread garments and the beckoning palm branches, to welcome the Prince of Peace into the Jerusalem of the new and redeemed

Methodism in Toronto, Canada.

BY THE ASSOCIATE EDITOR. Michigan Christian Advocate.

Methodistically, Toronto, is perhaps the most remarkable city in the world. The influence of Methodism is felt in all same service, "This is the way I long the moral, social, educational, and polittial places in the various professions, and in every department of commercial life. They fill many offices. The number of persons attending our churches, is greater than that attending those of any other denomination. We have twenty-eight churches. Eight of these churches are said to have an average Sunday congregation of 1,000, or more. Detroit has no Protestant congregation that averages so well. Several of the congregations are more than 1,500, while the Metropolitan crowd is even larger. Just about everybody goes to church. I had frequently heard this statement from Canadian visitors to our sanctum; but had no conception of the multitudes that throng these Toronto churches every Sunday morning and evening. I went to a populous part of the city Sunday evening, a few minutes before the time for service, and got a view of the churchgoers. It was a sight! The wide walks upon either side of the street were black with people, as far as the eye could reach. They were literally packed with books that come as candidates for favor a moving mass of humanity. I moved will cover the range of subjects, and meet on to the next street, and the same sight greeted me. On to the next, and still the same long processions moving steadily toward the Lord's house. In the crowds, were people of all sorts. But young persons predominated. There were regiments of them. It was a blessed sight. At Elm street church, where we worshiped that evening, there was a congregation safely estimated at 1,200, while Agnesstreet, only a block away, had 1,000 more. Here were two Methodist churches within a block, where the gospel was preached to at least 2,200 souls. On the same evening, the Metropolitan church had a congregation of nearly 2,000 more, and Sherbourne street, Carleton street, Queen street, McCaul street, Spidina avenue and Trinity, all large edifices, and not very far away, were full of wor-

It was the pleasure of this scribe, to participate in a small way, in the dedicatory services of the magnificent new Trinity church. It is pure Romanesque in style, built of stone, and in many respects is second to no church edifice in the city. Its regular seating capacity is 1,800. A deep gallery surrounds the auditorium on three sides. Ample light comes streaming in, through beautiful windows in the walls and roof, and the acoustic properties are so excellent, that the lowest tones of the speaker can be distinctly heard in the most distant part. The vicinity of the church is but sparsely settled as yet. It has required a large measure of faith and self-sacrifice, to place an edifice costing upwards of $73,-000 there, and wait for the coming of the people. But the congregation has already come. And it will presently be one of the very strongest in the city.

About the Theater.

Dr. Cuyler writes thus in the New York Mail and Express: "You must take the average stage as it is, and not as you would like to have it. It is an institution, which, if you patronize, you become morally responsible for, as much as if you were to patronize a public library, or a public drinking saloon. As an institution, it habitually uusexes woman by parading her before a mixed audience in man's attire. Too often it tive assistants for three years to this field.

exposes her, in such a pitiable scantiness of any attire at all, that if you saw your own sister in such a plight, you would turn away your eyes in horror. Yet you propose to pay your money (through the box-office), to somebody else's sisters and daughters, to violate womanly delicacy for your entertainment. If the daughter of Herodias dances to please you, then you are responsible for the dance, both in its influence on the dancer, and on your own moral sense. There is no evading, before God, of your accountability for the theater, if you habitually support it.

Another peril of the theater arises from the fascination, which it too often engenders. Like wine-drinking, it becomes an appetite. To gratify this growing passion for the play-house, tens of thousands of young people squander their money and their time. Other and purer recreations become tame and insipid. Wholesome pleasures cease to please; just as a brandy-drinker ceases to be satisfied with cold water. It is not recreation, but stimulation, and a very dangerous sort of stimulation, too, that you will be after, when you become enslaved by the fascination of the stage.

My young friends, be assured that no sagacious employer ever chooses a clerk or accountant, or other employe, the sooner, because he is a theater-goer. No sensible man is apt to select the companion of his heart and home, because she is a frequenter of a play-house. No good woman wants her sons and daughters there. No pastor expects that his youthful church members can go into that impure atmosphere, without a terrible damage to their piety. I don't believe that the theater has ever helped many souls toward heaven. I know that it has sent thousands to perdition. Now that I have, in a kind and caudid plainness of speech, pointed out some of the inevitable perils of the playhouse, do you feel like taking the risk?"

Preach the Word.

A writer in the Herald and Presbyter says: The best answer to infidelity is a full rounded, complete, genuine presentation of the gospel, without advertising the forms and names of unbelief. The gospel is a positive truth. It is not a series of answers to infidelity, but the proclamation of God's will to man. To answer infidelity, too much or too often, makes it seem that unbelief is the positive thing, and that the gospel is an answer to it; whereas, the gospel is the positive fact, and infidelity is an objection. You do not need to know all the objections. If you do, you need not expend all your time and strength in pointing them out to others.

Neither replies to objections, nor any other created thing, should be allowed to take the place of the gospel of Christ itself. Nothing else can take its place. "Preach the Word." It is that, and that only, which is able to save our souls. The great commission says, "Preach the gospel."- Christian Standard.

The papers have all been talking a ont Gen. Fiske's position on the prohibition question. Some of them have announced his withdrawl from the Prohibition party. The editor of the New York Witness wrote the general, asking about these reports. Here is his reply: "I am still carrying the prohibition banner from the highest summit I can climb, but I, with many others, may think it best to so modify methods of work as to attain greater results. In New Jersey, where the whiskey oligarchy has set supreme in the legislature, it may be well for all good men to combine against couspiring bad men. We must learn as we grow older, to do that which shall accomplish the most good, and not be bound to follow this method or that method. What we want is good results, and good results are attainable. The saloon must go. The failure of the constitutional amendments in New Hampshire and Massachusetts indicates very clearly that the masses are not yet ready for prohibition. Many most excellent people are sincere in their judgement against it, and we must do all we can to educate and agitate until the good time coming shall arrive. In the meantime let us stand by prohibition, and let us have good, hearty common sense to discern the best methods."

Ethiopia Stretches Out Her Hands.

BRO. THOMAS.—In the name of our dear Bishop Taylor, I thank you for the intelligent zeal you are showing in the Peninsula Methodist, for the Lord's work in Africa. It is a great work, its development is marvelous, and its results in the near future, will amaze the world. God is in it, good men and women are in it on both ends of the line, and it will triumph.

But what most concerns you and me is the fact, that the rapid development of this work is now calling for helpers and money that must be responded to. It is the call of God, and cannot be ignored. The women on the Since, who, the Bishop says, "shouted to him from the shore so frantically, as he passed down the river, for him to come ashore and promise them a missionary," is only one of the many instances, where they are calling for him to come and give them the Word of Life. They are willing to do anything to induce a Godman to come among them; our own women, vocate.

and even our Christian young ladies, are wanted, as well as the men, and our laity as well as ministers.

The remarkable revival at Cape Palmas still goes on. Bro. Kephart, who is in charge there, said to me before he left New York: "Doctor Welch, I am going to pitch in for an old fashioned revival of religion, as soon as I get to Cape Palmas. I believe it is as possible to reach the people there, as it is to reach the masses in our own country, and I will go to work in that faith." His good | icine. new wife responded, "Amen." God is honoring his work, according to his faith and aggressive works; and now he is reaching not only the Americo-Liberians you speak of in your last issue, but the natives are rushing into the kingdom. Sister Kephart was expected to take charge of our school, (a large Seminary) at Cape Palmas, but she is showing such efficiency in church work, that Bishop Taylor has had to find another for the superintendency of the school.

Bro. Thomas, look for great things in Africa; and look for great things in America, as Africa's recruiting station for the work. Men, women and money, will pour in therefrom this country during the next eighteen months, that will open the eyes of the sleeping church. Consecrated souls are receiving their commission from God, and the people's pocketbooks are being opened by the inspiration of the Holy Spirit.

Rev. Ross Taylor, the honored son of our honored Bishop, and Rev. Wm. B Osborne, who has so long and so faithfully stood by the Bishop, are both giving themselves to the work among the churches, and campmeetings this summer. They will not have to beg. Representing facts is all that is needed. It is only to tell our holy people throughout the land the facts, and God will tell them what to do. Glory to God for an unfolding Africa! Soon it shall be a New Africa!

"Among Whom Ye shine as Lights."

Holiness is self-demonstrative. He whose heart is pure surrounds himself with a spiritual atmosphere, and adorns his life with a constant succession of godly and benevolent actions. As a man traveling to a distant country thinks, reads, and talks of the land he longs to see, so the holy man thinks, reads, and speaks of the city of God, whither he is journeying; hoping to receive an inheritance in that dwelling place of sinless souls, "he purifieth himself as He is pure." The strongest desire of his soul is expressed in these lines of St. Ambrose:

"Meet for thy realm in Heaven. Make me, O holy King! That through the ages it be given To me thy praise to sing."

When visiting a gentleman in England, I observed a fine canary. Admiring his beauty the gentleman replied: "Yes, he is beautiful, but he has lost his voice. He used to be a fine singer, but I was in the habit of hanging his cage out of the window; the sparrows came around with their incessant chirping; gradually he ceased to sing and learned their twitter, and now all he can do is to twitter, twitter." O, how truly does this represent the case of many Christians! They used to delight in the songs of Zion, but they came into close association with those whose notes never rise so high, until at last, like the canary, they do nothing but twitter, twitter .-D. L. Moody.

The zeal of the Moravians in missionsionary work, is a matter of much comment. They are leaders in obeying Christ's command, "Go ve therefore and teach all nations." One in every fifty of them is sent as a foreign missionary. They have three times as many members in pagan lands, as in the home field Were the Methodist Episcopal church to undertake mission work on their basis, we should immediately send out among the heathen, forty thousand missionaries to teach and preach. A very instructive paper by Rev. W. F. Taylor is called the History of Pre-Raphellitian. A Propheny of Peolippe in Pre-Raphælitism, a Prophecy of Realism in Literature. The Sermonic Section is full of discourses, in full or in outline, by Drs. J. M. King, O. P. Lanphear, A. P. Peabody, J. Wesley Davis, A. T. Pierson, and R. F. Sam-ple. The Prayer-meeting Service, Dr. Wayand Hoyt makes instructive. Drs. Chambers and Crosby give interest to the Exegeti-cal Section, while Dr. Stuckenberg writes of Albrecht Ritschl, the eminent German theologian who has just died. Dr. Storrs' How I Succeeded in Extempore Preaching will be read with interest. Dr. J. M. Ludlow begins a series of papers on The House, as Used in Bible Illustration. The Editorial Section An index to Vol. valuable matter. XVII. closes the volume.

JESUS BEFORE PILATE.

GOLDEN TEXT. "Pilate saith unto them, Take ye him and crucify him" (John 19: 6). 1. Straightway in the morning-"as soon as it was day" (Luke). No time must be lost. At the earliest possible moment, a legal meeting of the Sanhedrim must be held. The hour was probably about 5.30. The whole council.-All had been summoned. The meeting-place was probably the usual onethe Hall Gazzith in the temple (Luke 22: 66). At this meeting, the decision of the previous meeting was ratified. Bound Jesus .-They feared He might try to escape. Carried him away-led Him in a sort of procession to the Prætorium, which was either in the castle of Antonia, on the north side of the temple, or in one of Herod's palaces, on the western hill of Jerusalem (Mount Zion) near the present Jaffa Gate. Delivered him to Pilatethe Roman procurator, the sixth (some say fifth) holding that office. His duties were to collect the revenues and administer justice. His head-quarters was at Cæsarea, but he usually came to Jerusalem during the great feasts, to preserve order. Pilate's term of office lasted ten years (probably from A. D., 27

"Suffered under Pontius Pilate"—so, in every creed of Christendom is the unhappy name of the Roman procurator handed down to execration (Farrar).—Pilate had an unyielding and severe disposition (Luke 13:1). and his conduct led to repeated revolts among the Jews, which he suppressed by bloody measures. He was therefore hated, and at last removed in consequence of the accusations made against his administration by the Jews. He died by his own hand at Vienna" (Schaff).

2. Art thou the king of the Jews?—The first attempt of the priests was to induce Pilate to condemn Jesus without an accusation (John 18: 28-32.) As this failed, they declared that He had forbidden Jews to pay tribute to Cæsar, Cæsar, and proclaimed Himself a king (Luke 23: 2). It was in reply to this political charge, that Pilate put the question. Thou sayest—that is, "I am." In John's account, our Lord first inquires in what sense the governor asked the question, and then, while admitting His kingly claim, explained the nature of His kingdom—that it was "not of this world," and therefore involved no collision with the Roman authority.

"Pilate may well have been perplexed. Christ had claimed to be King; promulgated laws; organized in the heart of Casar's province, the germ of an imperishable kingdom; entered Jerusalem in triumph, hailed by the throng as King of the Jews; and His arrest had been forcibly resisted by one of His followers. These facts a wily priesthood could easily pervert and exaggerate, so as to give color to their accusation" (Abbott).

3-5. Chief priests accused him of many things. -Pilate declared that he could "find no fault" in Jesus; and the priests, excited beyoud measure at the threatened failure of their scheme, poured forth a torrent of accusations and reiterations (Luke 23: 5). Answerest thou nothing?-It was not usual for an accused person to maintain such an impressive silence. Behold, how many things they witness.-Pilate could not understand how any Jew could listen composedly, without self-vindication, to this clamor of crimination. Answered nothing .- Says Abbott: "He had already explained to Pilate the nature of His kingdom, and satisfied him that He is innocent of sedition; after that He keeps silence. He will answer honest perplexity, but not willful slander." Pilate marvelled .- Our Lord's reticence seemed unnatural, mysteri-

6-8. At that feast he released (R. V., "he used to release").--It was a Passover custom with him. Says Schaff: "It was designed to soften the Roman yoke. A turbulent people always sympathizes with criminals condemned by hated rulers." Barabbas-either Bar-Abbas, "son of a father," or Bar-Rabbas, "son of a rabbi." His name is given as Jesus Barabbas in three MSS. of Matthew. John calls bim "a robber;" Matthew, "a notable prisoner." He was probably a zealot, who had gathered a band of followers, and forcibly resisted Roman rule. The multitude, crying aloud-R. V., "the multitude went up;" that is, to the Prætorium. The priests had been at work among them, bidding them demand the usual amnesty.

9, 10. Will ye that I release? etc.—The question was put to the people, rather than the priests. Pilate probably knew of the popularity of Jesus, and perhaps half-expected that they would demand His liberation.

The King of the Jews.—Pilate used the title

more out of sarcasm, than from real acknow ledgment of Jesus' kingly claim. Chief priests delivered him for envy .- Pilate doubtless knew of Jesus, and detected at once the real motive of His accusers; hence his appeal to the people. He knew perfectly well, that if Jesus had really plotted to seize the Jewish crown, and throw off the Roman yoke, these priests would have sided with Him, and been His most efficient supporters. Chief priests moved the people (R. V., "stirred up the multitude")-plying them with arguments, to the effect that He had been condemned, that He was a blasphemer, an impostor. How could He be divine, and not release Himself from fetters, not even vindicate Himself?

12. 13. What will ye then that I shall do i—Pilate perceives that he has made a false step, but tries to throw the responsibility upon the people. Crucify him.—The "wild-beast" spirit had gained the ascendency in the mob, and nothing now but the ignominious and accursed punishment of the cross, would satisfy them. Jesus' friends were either overawed or absent.

14. What evil hath he done?—the third time Pilate had asked this question. He had proposed to the people to scourge Jesus, and then let Him go, but the time had gone by, for such a tame proposition. Cried out exceedingly—an uploar that would not be quieted. All Pilate's expostulations were drowned in the fierce outery. The people were ready to take all the responsibility. His blood should be on them and their children. Pilate might wash his hands, or go through any other farcical performance, if only he would yield. He must yield, if he was "Casar's friend," and would escape being reported to his own government for maladministration.

15. Willing (R. V., "wishing") to content the people—not because Jesus was guilty, not because it was just to condemn Him, but simply because the people thirsted for His blood. When he had scourged him-the usual cruel punishment before execution. The blows were laid upon the naked back, with knots of rope or plaited leather throngs, armed at the ends with pieces of lead or sharp pointed bones. The victim sometimes died under this awful infliction. To be crucified -that is, to the soldiers appointed for the purpose. Says Schaff: "Thus Pilate sacrificed his independent position, as a representative of the Roman law, to the fanaticism of the Jewish hierarchy. The State became a tool in the hands of an apostate and blood thirsty church."

16. Led him away into the hall called Prætor ium (R. V., "within the court, which is the Prætorium'') .- The word "prætorium" was first applied to the tent of the general in the Roman camp; afterwards to the residences of the procurators, who were sometimes generals. The examination and scourging of Jesus, had taken place in front of the mansion or palace. The soldiers detailed for the execution now led Him, bleeding from the scourge, into the inner court of the Prætorium. Call together the whole hand—the cohort. or tenth of a legion, constituting either the garrison of the castle Autonia, or the bodyguard of the governor. A cohort numbered from four hundred to six hundred men. Says Morison: "The rough, brutal fellows, accustomed to gladiatorial shows and other savageries, wanted to get some sport out of their

17. Clothed him with purple—in Matthew, "a scarlet robe;" either the red military cloak, or some cast-off robe sufficiently defaced to look purple, and answer the purpose of ridicule. Herod had arrayed him in white. Platted a crown of thorns—thus wounding as well as mocking. The thorns in this case, are commonly identified with the nabk, very plentiful still in the vicinity of Jerusalem, bearing deep green leaves like ivy, and having pliant branches, and short, sharp spines; serving well as a burlesque on the laurel and myrtle wreaths, bestowed on victors at the Grecian games, or the golden circlets worn by kings.

18, 19. Hail—an old salutation, originally implying a wish for health, for the person addressed. King of the Jews—for so He claimed to be, a claim in their eyes grotesquely absurd. His prophetic claim had been derided by the priests; the soldiers now deride His regal claim. Smote him on the head with a reed.—They had put into His hand a reed as a mock sceptre; they now snatch it from Him and strike the head pierced with the thorny crown. Spit upon him—going through pretended acts of abjectest homage. They tried, like beasts, to torture their victim, before devouring.

"At this point, we have to insert the account which St. John gives (19: 4, 5) of Pilate's last attempt to rescue the "just Man" whom he had unjustly condemned. He showed the silent Sufferer to the people in the mock insignia of royalty, as if asking them, "Is not this enough?" The cries of "Crucify Him" were but redoubled; and once again the cowardly judge took his place in other visitors up to this ho gramme would cannot tell; for was by no met point in the file ence entered to other visitors.

the official chair, and passed the final sentence" (Plumptre).

20. Put his own clothes upon him—R. V. "put on him his garments." Led him out—outside the city walls, thus, unconsciously to them, fulfilling the prophetic meaning of the sin-offering, in which the bodies of the beasts offered, were burned without the camp (Lev 16: 27). It was customary, however, for executions to take place outside the camp, or city walls.

A Letter from New England.

DEAR BRO. EDITOR.—I am coming home. Many of your readers will remember, that in 1882, I was transferred to the Maine Cenference, and stationed in Portland. After finishing my pastorate there, I was transferred to the New Hampshire Conference. At Concord I was some fifty miles nearer you, and at Marchester, N. H., I was a little nearer still. This spring I have received another transfer, and have come about one hundred miles nearer you. Hence, you will perceive, "I am coming home."

Full River is within the bounds of the New England Southern conference, one of the largest and best in Methodism. Its territory embraces all the state of Connecticut, east of the Connecticet river, all the state of Rhode Island, and all the southeastern part of Massachusetts; the dividing line in Massachusetts running within less than twenty miles of Boston. The camp-meeting, best known to your readers is on Martha's Vineyard. This is the great headquarters, during the summer, for all Methodism in these parts; and many Methodists from elsewhere make frequent pilgrimages hither. The island is about ten miles from the mainland, and hence is attractive in hot weather, for its temperature. The post office for the camp is, Cottage City, Mass. The visitor will find many superb summer residences here, besides hundreds of less pretentious cottages. It is really a city of cottages.

Fall River is a city, situated on the Narragansett Bay, of over sixty thousand people. It is the steamboat terminus to the great through line of travel between New York and Boston, and gives the name to that line. The city is beautiful for situation, rising as it does in terraces, from the bay, and stretching for some six miles along the water front. On the east side, and penetrating the city, lies the Watuppa Lake, a sheet of fresh water, twelve miles long. The city contains some sixty large mills, nearly all of them manufacturing cotton goods. These are scattered in all parts of the city, and somewhat mar its beauty, because every mill has operative tenements more or less grouped around it.

There are six Methodist churches in the city. Two of them, the First, or mother church, and St. Paul's, are strong Some of the others have fair strength, and all are growing. The six pastors work together in great harmony, and the year is full of promise. The presiding elder of the New Bedford District, Rev. Walter Ela, lives here. He has just been appointed, and a few evenings ago, all the churches united in tendering him a reception. It was a notable gathering, and will be promotive of good in many ways.

Our recent New Hampshire Conference session was held at Amesbury, Mass. This bustling village,—a village in government, though it contains ten thousand people-is noted for two things: it is the home of the poet Whittier, and is a great carriage manufacturing centre. The conference, though ordinary in its routine work when it once began, was remarkable for one thing. Ten o'clock of Friday was reached, and not a single item of conference business had been done. General Conference and other visitors had absorbed all the time up to this hour. How long this programme would have been continued, I cannot tell; for the supply of "visitors' was by no means exhausted; but at this point in the flow of oratory, the Conference entered a protest, and turned to

On my way home I enjoyed two scenes of great interest to me. The first was Rocky Hill Church, near Amesbury It was built in 1785, and is in excellent condition. Four years ago great local interest was excited in the celebration of its centennial. It is the best specimen of the high pulpit, sounding board, deacons' sittings, and box pews, that I have ever seen. It was built when no stoves were put into the churches; nor has it one to this day. No services, however, are held in it during cold weather. It is perfectly plain, and arranged throughout for use rather than for comfort.

The second scene was still more enjoyable. On reaching Newburyport, Mass. I found that I had to wait more than an hour. Could I visit the church where the Rev. George Whitefield preached his last sermon, and beneath whose pulpit his ashes repose? On inquiry I found that I could. Hastening to the church with the faint hope that I might chance upon the sexton there, I was disappointed. An external view of the old building was well worth the tramp, but I wanted very much to get inside. I tried every door, in vain. Meanwhile gentleman across the street came over-I told him how anxious I was to gain admittance. He had brought his bunch of keys, and would see if he could open any of the doors for me. He tried them all, but failed. "Let me try mine," said I. Presto! the first effort in the first door, and the bolt flies back, and we are

Before entering I copied this inscription on the front of the church: "First Presbyterian Meeting House, 1756." Here was an older specimen, than the ancient one I had visited that morning; but upon entering I was disappointed, to find it modernized. Everything in connection with the church is kept in excellent condition, and one would hardly suspect its age.

In front of the pulpit, among other inscriptions is the following: "Under this pulpit are deposited the remains of Rev. George Whitefield." These remains are encased in an iron box, and I was told that if we could have unlocked the box, I might have touched the skull of him who moved with such marvelous eloquence the masses who flocked to hear him. But our keys could not command that lock. I was sorry, for I have sentiment enough, to make me want to lay my hand upon the frontal of this mighty man of God.

On the right of the pulpit, a monument is erected to the memory of Mr. Whitefield. It is well covered over with an inscription, that details the story of his eloquent and consecrated life. He died September 9th, 1770, of asthma."

J. M. WILLIAMS. Fall River, Mass., May 28th 1889.

There is much fine and holy sentiment in the accompanying gem which we take from the United Presbyterian:—Rowland Hill, himself a very old man, says that he heard of one who was asked what age he was. He answered, "The right side of eighty." "I thought you were more than eighty," said the inquirer. "Yes, I am beyond it," he replied: "and that is the right side, for I am nearer to my eternal rest." Would that this might be the feeling of all whose heads wear the snows of many winters!

The Remarkable Cures.

Which have been effected by Hood's Sarsaparilla, are sufficient proof that this medicine does possess peculiar curative power. In the severest cases of scrofula or sult rheum, when other preparations had been powerless, the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla has brought about the happiest results. The case of Miss Sarah C. Whittier, of Lowell, Mass., who suffered terribly from scrofulous sores; that of Charles A. Roberts, of East Wilson, N. Y., who had thirteen abscesses on his face and neck; that of Willie Duff, of Walpole, Mass., who had hip disease and scrofula so bad, that physicians said he could not recover, are a few of the many instances, in which wonderful cures were effected by this medicine.

Hood's Hood's Sarsaparilla 100 Doses One Dollar

The Chief Reason for the marvellous success of Hood's Sarsaparlila is found in the fact that this medicine actually accomplishes all that is claimed for it. Its real morit has won Merit Wins a popularity and sale greater than that of any other blood purifier. It cures Scrofula, all Hamors, Dyspepsia, etc. Prepared only by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Mast be Sold Off.

We have a very heavy stock of clothing and piece goods, and as we intend changing our store, we have concluded to sell off our stock, and will commence this day to remark and reduce prices so as to insure ready sale. We prefer to do this because the goods will be in our way, and then we want the cash. If you want good clothing, and want it cheap, now will be your chance to get it either ready made or made to your order, as we must run off our goods and we will sell at prices that will move them quick.

Help for Bishop Taylor.

Dr. T. B. Welch, of Vineland, New Jersey, associate editor of the African News, sends us an earnest appeal in behalf of the great work Bishop Taylor is doing, in planting mission stations in the Dark Continent.

This brother shows his faith by his works. During Bishop Taylor's visit to his native land last year, Dr. Welch pledged himself, to give in cash for this African work, as much as the Bishop might receive from other friends, thus doubling the amount of these contributions. At Ocean Grove, it will be remembered, these freewill offerings amounted to $2500; so that with Dr. Welch's generous gift, the total received at that place amounted to $5,000.

This warm friend of the Bishop and his self-supporting plans, doubled quite a number of contributions at other places.

In our issue of May 25, we gave our readers a very clear, and interesting statement from the Bishop himself, in developing the means by which they may support themselves.

We trust there will be a liberal response to this appeal of Dr. Welch, which our readers will find on our second page. All contributions sent to this office, will be acknowledged in the PENINSULA METHODIST, and forwarded to Richard Grant, Esq., Bishop Taylor's treasurer, 181 Hudson street, New Bishop Taylor and his work has the endorsement of the Church, by its highest legislative authority, the General Conference, and every loyal Methodist can but feel interested in his success.

He and his heroic fellow laborers are at the front, facing millions of ignorant and degraded heathen, holding up the standard of the Cross and Methodism, And such heroism and devotion should challenge the admiration and sympathy of every lover of Christ and humanity.

It would be a nameless dishonor to our church at home to allow her chosen and duly commissioned leader to fail for lack of adequate support.

What a spectacle! This veteran minister of Christ in his 69th year, pressing the battle to the gates! Let there be a rally of men, and an ample supply or money. God bless our grand and hero io Bishop! Another Itinerant "Finishes His Course."

Rev. George W. Lybrand, of the Philadelphia Conference, died in his home in Philadelphia, Saturday morning last, June 1st, in the 67th year of his age, and the 47th of his gospel ministry.

He was the son of Rev. Joseph Lybrand, a most eminent and eloquent Methodist preacher, who joined the same Conference in 1811, five years before the close of Bishop Asbury's marvelous itinerant career.

Converted in early childhood, this son of an honored sire, after preaching one year under the direction of a presiding elder, joined the Conference in 1844, and did faithful and effective service, as a gospel minister from that time forward, without intermission, until a little more than one year ago, when failing health obliged him to retire from the field of active labor.

Ten years of service in pastoral work, Bro. Lybrand gave to churches on our Peninsula; 1850-'52, Millington Ct., 1852-'54, Smyrna Ct., 1858-'60, Bethel, Md.; 1860-'62, Newark, Del. Twelve years were given to mission work in the Special attention was paid by him to children and youth, in the firm conviction, that youthful piety is of priceless value, and that Solomon was divinely inspired in the utterance of those memorable words. "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it."

Brother Lybrand was assiduous and constant, in the distribution of religious tracts. Wherever he went, he carried with him a well assorted collection of these little missives of truth, and carefully and kindly would he distribute them among those he met; thus sowing the seed of the kingdom, in humble hope of an eternal harvest. "He that goeth forth, and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him."

In Methodist history, our brother was an enthusiastic student, and for years he has been a recognized authority on this subject. His researches, and original contributions on this line are of great val-

Our readers will remember a number of interesting articles from his pen, that have appeared in the Peninsula Meth-ODIST.

In the recent Centennial of Cecil circuit, in Newark, Del., Bro. Lybrand's contributions were of great interest, as which he tells us, that while he pays no benediction. The Centennial of "Old his presence and beautiful spirit was a salaries, it is necessary that moneys be Asbury," in this city, in the current year, furnished, for outfit, for transit, for was a matter of much interest to himbuildings, and for supporting these self- and among his latest labors, was the pre sacrificing missionaries, while they are paration of biographic notes of early itinerants, who laid the foundations of Methodism in Wilmington.

But he is gone!

"Life's labor done, as sinks the clay, Light from its load, the spirit flies; While heaven and earth combine to say,
How blest the righteous when he dies!

A purer, kiudlier spirit seldom animates a human soul, than that which shone so long and so attractively, in the life of George W. Lybrand. No wonder that multitudes were led to Christ by his modest, faithful, and loving ministry. 'His works do follow him."

A widow, several children, and grandchildren survive, with the blessed heritage of his radiant example.

Funeral services were held in Union M. E. Church, Philadelphia, Tuesday morning, June 4th, and his mortal remains were deposited in the ministerial burial lot in Mt. Moriah Cemetery. A considerable number of loving friends were present at these last solemn rites, among whom were many of his ministerial associates.

An Unparallelled Disaster.

For the week past, the daily papers have been giving heart sickening details, of the terrible catastrophe, by which, thousands of lives have been destroyed, and millions of property.

Johnstown, Pennsylvania, a city of 30,000 inhabitants, situated in the Conemaugh valley, a hundred miles east of Pittsburg, was almost entirely demolished, Friday afternoon, May 31st, by a resistless flood, that rushed down upon it from a large reservoir that gave way under the pressure of swollen waters. The number of lives lost is estimated as high as 10,000, and not less than 8,000.

The suddenness of the flood, its overwhelming proportions, moving as a vast column from twenty-five to thirty feet in height, and as wide as the valley, with fearful velocity and force, and the circumstances of horror attending its work of ruin, make this the most appalling calamity that has ever visited equalled since the primal Deluge, that left but a single family alive.

The continuous and heavy rains for days previous had swollen the streams, and by Friday afternoon such a volume of water filled the reservoir, said to be 300 feet above the valley, that the dam yielded to the pressure, and the mass of waters rushed down through the valley and spreading devastation along a distance of 18 miles.

In view of the loss of human life, and the anguish of the bereaved survivors, it is scarcely possible to take much account of the losses of property; though it is estimated to amount to more than $10,000,000.

This dire disaster has awaked universal sympathy throughout the country and generous supplies for the relief of the destitute sufferers are contributed in cash and goods from all quarters.

The Morning News, of Wednesday

In any event the moral responsibility remains, and that is a heavier burden than most persons would be willing to assume. The whole disaster was due to the dam, and those who retained it for these is incident to the proceedings of the pleasure purposes at a point on the last quarterly conferences of the year. mountain some three hundred feet above After the delegate to the Annual Con-Johnstown and the adjacent villages, ference is elected, he must needs be inand enlarged it so that it became a more structed. The Assembly decided that tive tones of sacred song, the outflow of trusting faith and hope, that "looked not adopted two years ago, to the effect, that at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen."

Come as it may, in the quiet and loving surroundings of our happy homes, or in the excitement and alarm of some sudden disaster, death is the king of terrors; but timid youth as well as the vigorous and mature are able to meet bim with unblanched cheek, undaunted courage, and even in the spirit of exulting triumph, when conscious of the presence and loving favor of the Conqueror of Death.

The Psalmist speaks for such victors, when he says, "Yea, though I walk through the valley and shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff, (the Almighty Shepherd's) they comfort me."

It was re-assuring, and savored of the things that are unseen and eternal, to hear the song-prayer,

"Nearer my God, to thee, Nearer to thee,"

as it floated over the surging flood, from the lips of those who were in prospect of certain death beneath its angry waves.

In Memoriam.

By appointment of the Wilmington Preachers' Meeting, Monday, June 3d, our country, if indeed, it has ever been the undersigned have prepared the following minute, in reference to the death of our beloved brother, Rev. George W. Lybrand, of the Philadelphia Annual Conference of the M. E. Church.

Brother Lybrand was the son of Rev. Joseph Lybrand, in his day, one of the most eloquent and successful ministers of the gospel in our Church. After preaching one year under the presiding below, carrying everything before it, elder, he joined the Philadelphia Conference in 1844, and for forty-five years, has rendered faithful and efficient service, with the exception of a little over one year.

> Ten years he served churches on this Peninsula.

He was a man of pure and kindly Christian character, devoted to his work diligent and untiring in ministerial labors, and especially attentive to children and youth. He was an authority in matters of Methodist history, and an enthusiastic collector of facts illustrative of the same.

ing nothing. The sooner our quarterly conferences learn, what ought to be patent to every one who is at all familiar with the responsibilities of the president, they will let that custom drop out as ineffective and harmful. What! Do you mean to say, that when the congregation and the incumbent preacher are both satisfied, and agree to remain together another year, and the delegate requests the continuance of the relation, the president will break it up? He will, if that be essential to his plan of appointments. As good Methodist Protestants, the charge will acquiesce in the best the president can do for it; and the preacher will accept the best the president can give him; for the president is bound to the Lord Jesus, to do every time the best he can, for both the charges and the preachers, and if he don't, he is false to his po-

Durbin on Mount Sinai.

From Dr. Roche's Life of John P. Durbin.

It was three miles from our position on Jebel Musa, to the summit of Sufsafeh, (Sinai on the map), which overlooks the plain Er-Rahah. It took us three hours, with great fatigue and some danger, to reach it. No one who has not seen them can conceive the ruggedness of these vast piles of granite rocks, rent with chasms, rounded into smooth summits, or splintered into countless peaks, all in the wildest confusion, as they appear to the eye of an observer from any of the heights. But when we did arrive at the summit of Es Sufsafeh and cast our eyes over the wide plain, we were more than repaid for all our

One glance was enough. We were satisfied that here, and here only, could the wondrous displays of Sinai have been visible to the assembled host of Israel; that here the Lord spoke with Moses; that here was the mount, that trembled and smoked in presence of its manifest Creator. We gazed for some time in silence; and when we spoke, it was with a reverence that even the most thoughtless of our company could not shake off. I read on the very spot, with what feelings I need not say, the passage in Exodus, which relates the wonders, of which this mountain was the theatre. We felt the truth, and could almost see the lightnings, and hear the thunders, and the 'trumpet waxing loud.' I had stood upon the Alps in the middle of July, and looked abroad upon their snowy empire; I had stood upon the Apennines, and gazed upon the plains of beautiful Italy; I had stood upon the Albanian Mount, and beheld the scene of the Aeneid from the Circean promontory, over the Campagna to the Eternal City and the mountains of Tivoli; I had sat down upon the Pyramids of Egypt, and cast my eyes over the sacred city of Heliopolis, the land of Goshen, the fields of Jewish bondage, and the ancient Memphis, where Moses and Aaron, on the part of God and his people, contended with Pharoah and his servants, the death of whose first-born of man and beast in one night, filled the land with wailing; but I had never set my feet on any spot, from whence was visible, so much stern, gloomy grandeur, heightened by the silence and solitude that reign around, but infinitely more, by the awful and sacred associations of the first great revelation in form from God to man. I felt oppressed with the spirit that seemed to inhabit the holy place. I shall never sit down upon the summit of Sinai again, and look upon the silent and empty plains at its feet; but I went down from that mount a better man, determined so to live, as to escape the terrible thunders at the last day, which once reverberated through these mountains, but have long since given way to the gospel of peace. I from the mind with a profuse expression wicked prejudice must be worked down, the hallowed summit, and wished that I, too, could linger here forty days in con-

GUMBORO, DEL.,-In the news item from this charge, published in the PENINSULA METHODIST last week, the change in arranging the circuit, was incorrectly stated. Bro. Johnson, the pastor, writes; Houston's has been put back to Frankford where it belongs, but Jones' has not been put back to this charge. The people desire the latter change and, should it be made, they would rejoice greatly, both the members of Jones' or a majority of them, I think, and those of this charge. This people are living in hope of this, even if they yet die in despair.

Our Children's service is to be held, (D. V.) at Bethel, June 16th, and at Gumboro, June 23d. The envelopes are out, and I feel quite sure when they come in, we will be up to our apportionment for education. Pray for Port Pen was lifted to the dignity of a station last Conference, and Fred E. McKinsey appointed pastor. Thos. Higgins was elected superintendent of the Sunday-school, which numbers sixty five. They need a library. Will not some school buying a new library, send them their old one? Prayer and class meetings have been organized; six have been received by certificate, and one on probation. Our people joined in the remonstrance against the saloon, and success was secured. The works opens at Port Penn with promise of success. St. George's very reluctantly gave up Bro. Warthman, who was transferred to the New Jersey Conference, but gladly received Rev. Joseph Sanford Moore, in exchange. Bro. Moore is a graduate of Drew Theological Seminary, and has settled down to his work with a purpose to win. Geo. W. Simpler was appointed Sunday-school superintendent; eighty is the average attendance. Leven Catts is superintendent at Summit. Geo. W. Townsend, Joseph Heisel, David C. Vail, Wm. H. Bentz, Edward Lester, J. M. Craig, Wm. L. Sparks were approved as Trustees at St. George's. Concerning the Ladies' Hall.

BROTHER MINISTERS:--At the request of our local trustees, I have sent to the ministers of our Conference, a circular letter, concerning the Ladies' Hall, that it is proposed to build in connection with our Conference Academy. Those who have not replied to the letter, will please answer at their earliest convenience, as it is very important that every charge shall be heard from on this matter, if | published. possible, before the annual meeting of our Trustees in June.

Owing to the incompleteness of the tables in our Conference Minutes concerning the Ladies' Hall collection, I could not give the the figures as I intended, for the Salisbury district. I tried to get them elsewhere, but failed. The brethren will please report according to their own judgment and knowledge in the matter. Only, don't fail to report.

Reports were madefrom the various churches by Revs. B. F. Price, W. L. S. Murray, and L. E. Barrett; Bro. Barrett announcing, a contribution of $215, in the St. Paul's Sunday school for the relief of the sufferers in the recent calamity at Johnstown, Pa.

On motion, Bro. Price was invited to read his paper, entitled "Denominational Theod-The reading was listened to with icy." much interest, and an animated discussion followed, upon various points made by the essayist, in which Bros. Todd, Murray, Van Burkalow, and Stengle participated.

To indicate the author's estimate of his own denomination, we quote the following;

"The Methodist Episcopal Church, as the outcome of that great movement, (The Protestant Reformation) can claim a high providential origin, a peculiar ecclesiastical role, an earnest evangelism, with gifts graces work and fruits, and a theological code in which law and grace are harmonized, divine sovereignty and human responsibility adjusted, the conflict of ages settled, and the whole Deity made known."

The death of Rev. George W. Lybrand, of the Philadelphia Conference last Saturday, was announced, and on motion of Dr. Murray, a committee was appointed to prepare a suitable tribute to be entered on the record; chair appointed Drs. Murray and Todd, and T. S. Thomas.

It was resolved that the meeting for next Monday, June 10th, be held on the steamer Thomas Clyde on route to Beverly, N. J. Curators announced for Monday, June 17th, a paper by J. D. C. Hanna, on "The Wines of the Bible."

We left off writing, when we left Hallwood if we mistake not; and here we are at Parksley, where we find happy Henry S. Dulaney, the paster. He is always cheerful, and people catch his sunshine, by a sort of contagion We had a fine congregation, after a blessed love-feast.

Parksley, has an opportunity, and is full of promise in many directions; 1. it's handsome; good people control it; 3. it is a central business location; 4. it must have a splendid future as a business place: 5, it is fast filling up; 6. the building is under wise direction, so that the town will have shape and beauty; 7. the lots are sold under prohibitory regulations, so that no improper building or business can be located there; 8. rum can't be sold there; 9. the people there believe it will be the county seat.

The quarterly conference resolved to hold a camp-meeting, the time to be fixed hereafter. They will make the camp go We had much good cheer, in the families of Bros. Bennet and Jones: the latter, an old schoolmate. We also met Miss Chadbourne, the elocutionist, who can out-warble the birds. She is one of the members of the Lund Company; and we hope she will not be offended, if we call her a wide awake business person, of Yankee get up and go. She is worth more than land and houses. If I were a certain fellow, I would compel someone to say no, or take the contract to sew on but-

Sunday afternoon, we helped Bro. Dulaney to cremate a mortgage, and free a church which is too small for the congregation, and must be enlarged at once.

And now we meet Bro. G. W. Burke, at Onancock. He is cheerful; he is always so How such men do light up life's highways and by ways! His work is in good shape, and will pan out well.

He is moving, to repair and refit the parsonage and have a good home. Why don't all of us preachers fix up our homes, and have comfort?

At New Church, we met Bro. Graham, full of push and go. His town church is just finished, and is a good job. He impressed us as a man of worth, who is going to win; and if he is not heard from later, our expectations will not be met.

"Went down to the river, and couldn't get acrost." The old blunderbus of a railroad, all overgrown with grass and weeds. from King's Creek to Crisfield, kept us spending the afternoon in jerk and snatch, till we missed the boat by which we were to have gone to Tangier Island. This railroad is a rundown, played out, old relic of its past slipshodiness; a disgrace to the company, and an affliction imposed on the traveling public. They sell tickets to put passengers at stations on time, and then violate their contract by the hour. Crisfield is not to be blamed for this state of things, as it has no controll over the situation, but suffers most, because it is compelled to go most.

"Life on the ocean waves, A home on the rolling deep," and here we go "acrost" the sound, to Tan gier Island; our first visit there. The church is too small to hold the crowds that go to hear Bro. Conner preach, so the house is to be enlarged. The parsonage is to be refurnished; and the good people of the Island, are highly pleased with their new pastor.

"High noon," and love-feast closed, sermon finished, dinner eaten, sail up, and we are off for Smith's Island; wind ahead, tide against us, and we tack, tack, tack, by the hour, from 12 M., to 4.30 P. M. Now we face the congregation, and see the interior of Bro. Jaggard's church. It's frescoed, and carpeted with Brussels carpet; and has a congregation of nice looking people. We spent the night at the old home of that noted man, Haney Bradshaw, and used his old Bible, in the family worship. His widow is "yet alive" and lives with her son. Bro. Jaggard lives in a pretty little cottage "down by the river's side," and loves his home, his wife, and his work. Took two sails on Monday; and preached Monday night. Too much birds, oysters, and tea for supper; and men."

too much kick all night, resulting in too much headache next day,

Tuesday, light wind, and from seven til eleven and a half A. M., sailing ten miles; and from one forty-five to five, spent on that same old mixed train, from Crisfield to Salisbury. As we went along, with a bang, snatch rattle, with head a swing, and joints a jerk, we thought of Dr. Buckley's famous ride to the Crisfield Conference.

HARRINGTON, DEL., T. L. Price, pastor, writes:-Last Sunday, our communion day, was one that we will all remember, because of the presence of our Divine Lord. Mrs. E. B. Stevens spent the day with us, giving an excellent talk in the morning, an illustrated lecture in the evening, and organizing an auxiliary of the work she so nobly represents. This new society begins with about forty enthusiastic members. We expect the best re sults from their work, and ask your earnest prayer, that God's blessing may rest upon these good people, who have thus taken upon themselves, to send the glorious gospel to the lost and dying.

ITEMS.

In 1788, there were 37,000,000 Protestants in the world; there are now 134,000,000.

Rev. D. P. Seaton, of the Baltimore Conference of the A. M. E. Church, will represent that body as a delegate, to the World's Sunday-school Convention in London.

It is proposed to erect a bronze statue on the site of the old apple-tree at Norwalk, where Jesse Lee preached the first Methodist sermon in New England.

There are three Protestant churches in Lisbon. Portugal, and the pastors of all three were formerly Roman Catholic priests.

A Methodist preacher's wife in New York, stepped into the mission rooms the other day, and handed one of the secretaries $100 as a "nest egg," toward providing a home for returned missionaries.

The Methodists of this country have seventy-five newspapers. But some of them are such only in name.

According to the "Episcopal plan," Bishop Bowman goes to the Pacific Coast, Bishop Andrews to China and Japan, Bishop Walden to South America, and Bishop Fowler, who is already abroad, will complete the round of European conferences.

A Mr. Ingham, an English lawyer, and a member of the Episcopal Church, sent a proposition to our General Missionary Committee, that he would pay half the salary of a missionary at a station near Delhi, India, pro viding the Committee would pay the balance. Mr. Richard Grant, of the Committee, and Bishop Taylor's Treasurer, arose and said, "tell that Englishman, that an American member of this Committee accepts his prop-

After his departure, the friend's wife remonstrated with him for playing on the simplicity of the reverend gentleman; but was herself scarcely able to frestrain her risibles. when, some time after, the minister called again, and remarked: "O, do you know that I adopted your husbands suggestion of reading one of my sermons to my boy, and it worked like a charm !''

Governor Ames of Mass. in his third annual message, said; "Once more I earnestly recommend, as an act of simple justice, the enactment of a law securing municipal suffrage to woman. Recent political events have confirmed the opinion which I have long held, that if women have sufficient reason to vote they will do so. and become an important factor in the settlement of greater questions. During the past winter and spring, the road-hed of both the West Jersey, and Camden, and Atlantic has been greatly improved. The West Jersey road has been bettered in various ways and reballested; the track of the Camden and Atlantic has been renewed on many portions of the line, and track-tanks have been added for the use of fast trains. The equipment, both in locomotives and cars, is superior in every respect, and will be ample for the comfortable conveyance of the largest midsummer crowd.

The terminal facilities at both ends of the line, possess the advantage of superior loca-tion. The Market Street station in Philadelphia, from which the fast trains of both the West Jersey and Camden and Atlantic Rail-roads start, is the central seashore station of the city, accessible from all sections by direct lines of street-cars, and within fifteen min-utes of Broad Street station by the Market Street cable cars. In addition to the central station at Market Street, there is also a ferry from Vine Street, and a boat running from Vine and Shackamaxon Streets, direct to the Camden side of the Market Street ferry.

At Atlantic City, passengers are landed in the heart of the city, at a point from which every part of the city and suburbs are easily reached by the new electric railway.

The special excursion travel is delivered at the large and handsome new excursion house, the Sea View Hotel which is just completed. This is the most commodious and best appointed house of the class on the coast, and offers every facility that the day excursionist could demand

With all their facilities improved and strengthened, with ample equipment and fast trains, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company's branches to Atlantic City, will grow stronger in the favor of the traveling public.

"Best Methods, Etc."

I am much pleased that Bro. Jones removes a little of the mystery connected with his writings, or expressed opinions. If I can bring him out fair and square on the line of Prohibition, I shall feel satnot intended to convey." It would take thousand miles from Boston. a wiser head than he or I, to solve the intricate writings of our brother, if he means otherwise than what he presented in his articles. "A man of straw." Straw is very useful sometimes, even if penitentiaries with 3,000 inmates. it is light, in bringing out the deep ideas of cultivated minds. "Bullets" are effective in times of war; but ballots more so, if east for Prohibition. Bullets do not scare the rummies, but ballots do. The whiskey and beer men never cared for moral reform, or moral suasion; but when the temperance men cast their ballots for the third party, they became aroused and alarmed. "The difficulty with Bro. Gregg's logic is, he entirely misapprehends the meaning of the expression, moral reform." Bro. Gregg never did, nor does he now misapprehend the meaning of moral reform; nor is "his mind biased by some ghost of the past;" but, he knows very well that moral reform is, only in part another word for moral suasion. Moral reform and moral suasion must go together, to accomplish the work of the reformers, which, of itself will do very little good, in extirpating the great evil of rum. Whiskey men laugh at the work of the moral reformers, and non-partisans.

I am very glad our Bro. Jones had Webster's dictionary at hand to consult; for a large part of his reply is made up from that book. It was said that the ex-President, when travelling through the country, making speeches, used Webster freely. Now Bro., keep the dictionary handy to consult, and you will not often go wrong. But look at both words and compare them, and see if you can get along without persuasion.

"Glorious reformation, by the entire prohibition of the liquor traffic." Yes, wonderfully glorious indeed; but never will it be brought about, by the milk and water methods of mere reform and suasion, as advocated by old party plans. It does not take an eagle eyed philsopher to discover where a man stands, when he is constantly talking and writing about moral reform. If the old Whig party had continued to argue reform. lavery would still exist, but when the third party was formed, and men had to face the music by their ballots, then the government was made strong enough by this means, to force the evil from the country. So we think, the present third party is to accomplish the work of sweeping the demon of rum from the land.

I have known Bro. Jones for many years, even before he entered the ministry, and have always esteemed him highly; but to be opposed on "principle to all license, high or low," is another matter. Principle; We want no parleying and prevaricating, to evade the direct issue. We do not want to sail around the world, to get at the great question at issue. I think the moral reformers ought to coin some new words, to help sail as near the subject as possible, without coming in direct contact with it, as the old "hackneyed" words are becoming stale. Now Bro., it is time to abandon principle, moral reform, non-partisan, best methods, next best plan, and join the Prohibition party, advocate her principle, adopt her plans, and as sure as you live, this vile demon will be destroyed, and you can see the clear and conclusive solution of this great question, and place me among the leading benefactors of my countrymen. Excuse me for the the short Latin phrase, Dum spiro spero. W. B. GREGG.

Margaret E. Hudson, daughter of James and Anne W. Phuebus, and wife of Rev. George Hudson, pastor of the M. E. church at Blandford, Mass., was born on Little Mo-nic, Somerset Co., Md., Sept. 1st, 1842, and died in the Methodist Hospital, Brooklyn, N. Y., May 11th, 1889.

Though reared under Methodist influences, her father being a devoted layman in that church, and his house a home for the Methodist Itinerant, she did not 'join class' until her marriage in 1866.

Soon afterwards, she united with the church at Furnace Chapel, Snow Hill circuit, having obtained from the class-leader, his promise, not to require her "to speak in the meeting." Being of a quiet, retiring disposition, she shrank from public religious demonstration; but this diffidence was overcome, by her convictions of duty and by her convictions of duty; and it was not lon,g until, under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, she prayed, spake, led the singing in public; realizing, as all who were associated with her, did, that her participations in religious exercises of a meeting, always increased its devotional influence. To the cause of Temperance, pen, voice, and personal labors were given. The twenty three years of her married life have been spent in various sections of the country; and in every community, she has proved herself to be a Christian, strong in conviction, firm in principle, earnest in life, faithful in her home. She was admired and

Friday Meeting.

Bro. A. T. Scott, in charge, read the thirty-third psalm, beginning, "Rejoice in the Lord, O ye righteous; for praise is comely for the upright." The leading thought of this psalm is the worthiness of God to be praised and to be confided in. He is great, and good and doeth wondrous things. If we would maintain our integrity, and have good success, we must trust in the Lord, and rejoice in him. In every time of need, we may depend upon his help. His loving arms will be thrown around us, and bear us over difficulties, that we find too great for us to surmount. Singing,

"Arise, my soul, arise
Shake off thy guilty fears,
The bleeding sacrifice
In my behalf appears; Before the throne my surety stands, My name is written on his hands."

After prayer by a brother, singing

"Jesus, Lover of my soul,
Let me to thy bosom fly;
While the nearer waters roll
While the tempest still is high."

Brother Foster; I rejoice in the Lord, in the blessed Christ that is "able to save to the uttermost," he saves me, and his blood cleanseth me from all sin. I am satisfied there is nothing to be compared to the joy of full salvation. Christ is all in all to the saved.

Singing;

"With joy we meditate the grace, Of our High Priest above; His heart is made of tenderness, His bowels melt with love."

Sister Crouch; I'm glad I know the saving power of Jesus; "it is better," says the psalmist, "to trust in the Lord, than to put confidence in princes." I too rejoice in the Lord and his cleansing blood. I rejoice in his keeping power; never was so grandly kept as now. Bless the Lord, O my soul!

Singing;

"Rock of Ages, cleft for me, Let me hide myself in thee; Let the water and the blood,

From thy wounded side which flowed, Be of sin the double cure Save from wrath, and made me pure."

Dr. Simms; I rejoice in the Lord, for the grace of full salvation, which he bestows upon me. We must have on the spotless robe without wrinkle, or blemish. I rejoice in the light of his truth, and glory in God, who keeps me day by day through the abiding Comforter, and the sanctifying power of the truth. In his strength we may live a life of holiness, before the world and the Church, and show forth the praise of our Almighty Savior.

Singing;

"All my life-long I have panted,
For a draught from some cool spring,
That I hoped would quench the burning
Of the thirst I felt within. Hallelujah, I have found it,

What my soul so long has craved, Jesus satisfies my longing.

Through his blood I now am saved."

Bro. Howland; I, too, can say, "I have found it," it is a holy way in which to live; I love it. When I learned this way of salvation by experience, how I enjoyed it. The experience of holy men helped me, as I heard it, in 1870. I want to do all I can for the Lord's cause, to do his will fully. Oh, how I love him. Bless his holy name.

Singing;

"O how happy are they,
Who their Savior obey,
And have laid up their treasures above; Tongue can never express, The sweet comfort and peace Of a soul in its earliest love."

Brother Scott; Let us go forth and go forward, trusting in God, rejoicing in his power to cleanse from all sin, and to keep all those who believe in him. Benediction by Dr. Simms.
